(e.g. C:\). What is a 'Product Code' (serial number)? The Product Code is provided to the customer when purchasing a console, PS3, PS4 or Vita system from your local retailer. The 'Product Code' is assigned to your console by the manufacturer. It is a non-transferable identification number provided by the manufacturer to the retailer to validate that the console was purchased from a given retailer. This is also known as a'serial number' or 'Console Number'. The 'Product Code' is used to register your console with Sony Computer Entertainment Europe. No changes can be made to the 'Product Code' once the console has been purchased from a retailer. It is important to note that the 'Product Code' is only unique to the console hardware and must be stored on the console to prevent unauthorised use of the console. The 'Product Code' is also stored within the system memory within the console. If you have purchased a PS4 console, the 'Product Code' is displayed on the console (as shown in the video in the beginning of this document). This information is not a replacement for your console 82157476af
